STRAUSS AND HIS DOG.

Story of the Waltz King and His Fem-Inlus Admirors in Boston.

When Johann Strauss visited Boston at the time of the Gilmore jubilee the "Blue Danube" walzes were as well known in this country as "Yankes Doodle," and so when the composer was found to be a handsome and dapper little man, with lovely blue eyes and a mass of wavy black hair that was almost as extra vagantly long as Paderewski's, the Boston musical women went wild over him. Strauss was a great dog-fancier at that time, and was accompanied by a magnificent black retriever. Toward the last of the concert days, some enthusiastic young woman sprung the idea of getting a lock of Strauss' hair for her looket. The fashion grew into a fad, and Johann promised every applicant a memento. And in due time the locks were distributed-many hundreds of themeach one accompanied by the compliments of the waltz king. Enough hair had been cut off and distributed to make Strauss look as though he had been sand-papered. he left Boston for New York his locks Johann's beautiful black-haired dog was put into the baggage-car, the poor creature looked like a shorn poodle.

ANOTHER ATTACHMENT.

The Smith Drug Company Wants to Recover $200 From Dr. Burket.

There is more trouble in store for Dr. Burket's drug stock. Judge Hazen has decided that L. M. Crawford's attachment against the stock, for rent, shall not be dissolved; and now the C. D. It is probable that the sheriff will sell the stock at auction this week, and the $200 that Assistant State Auditor Mackey put in the venture seems to be gone beyond recall.
